

Kobie Flowers Selected as One of Washington, D.C.'s Top Lawyers by Washingtonian Magazine

Brown, Goldstein & Levy is proud to announce that partner Kobie Flowers has been selected for Washingtonian's 2017 Top Lawyers list in the Criminal Defense category.

Washington, DC, has more lawyers than anywhere else in the country. As a result, the Washingtonian goes through an arduous process to choose its list of Top Lawyers. The process involves months of surveys, research on significant cases, and interviews with peers to whittle down the large number of lawyers. The result is a list of Washington's top legal talent in 20 categories — the area's go-to attorneys.

With nearly 20 years of courtroom experience, Kobie's practice involves representing individuals and businesses in complex criminal and civil matters. His first-chair trial experience in building cases for the government as a federal civil rights prosecutor and in fighting the government's efforts as an assistant federal public defender provides him with an uncommon insight into trial practice. In both roles, Kobie was trained in and maintained the highest standards of trial advocacy. He brings that tradition of excellence to the private practice of law.
