

Rebecca Rodgers

Fellow 2012-2013

Profile

Rebecca Rodgers joined Brown Goldstein & Levy as a Disability Rights Fellow in August 2012. Her practice focused on disability rights litigation, particularly in cases challenging the use of inaccessible technology in educational and employment settings.

Prior to joining the firm, Rebecca worked as a Law Fellow at the D.C. Volunteer Lawyers Project in Washington, D.C., where she served as the lead attorney on cases in the organization's domestic violence and custody and divorce practice groups.

During law school, Rebecca interned with Americans United for Separation of Church and State and with the American Civil Liberties Union of the Nation's Capital. She also participated in the Public Justice Advocacy Clinic, where she represented clients in wage and hour and unemployment insurance cases.

Rebecca was the Administrative Editor of the George Washington International Law Review.

As an undergraduate, Rebecca won the Outstanding Undergraduate Art History Major award.

Education

- The George Washington University Law School, J.D., with honors, 2011
- The George Washington University, B.A., summa cum laude, 2008

Bar Admissions

- Maryland
- New York